Confidential specialist support offered to Health Staff working through the pandemic

This week Belfast Health and Social Care Trust launched Thrive, a confidential specialist psychological support service tailored to meet the needs of staff who have worked in health and social care services during the pandemic.

Thrive has been commissioned by the Department of Health to ensure that staff who may benefit from specialist psychological support have access to it. To read more about this new service, click here.

CRADLE is a registered charity that supports women, partners, surrogates and intended parents affected by pregnancy loss before the 24th week of pregnancy. Séana Talbot, Maternity and Neonatal service manager at Belfast Trust, said: “We are delighted to be working with CRADLE to support women experiencing pregnancy loss. The CRADLE packs will hopefully make a difference for women and their partners at a very difficult time.” To find out more click here.
