You have made a complaint

What happens next?

Complaints

We aim to provide high quality services. If our performance is not up to standard or if you are unhappy, we need to know so that we can learn and improve the quality of services we provide. We will take your complaint seriously and treat it in confidence.

Making a complaint does not affect your rights and will not result in the loss of any service you have been assessed as needing.

Consent and access to records

Anyone who uses any of our services can complain. You can also complain on someone else's behalf, although you will generally need their written consent. Please note, that to enable us to investigate your complaint, your personal information (eg. relevant health or social care records) may need to be available to the person/s investigating your complaint. If you have any concerns about this, please contact our Complaints Department staff.

What will happen next

Your complaint will be acknowledged within 2 working days of receipt and it will be investigated thoroughly and confidentially. We aim to respond to your complaint in full within 20 working days, to address your concerns and let you know of any actions taken as a result. Some complaints take longer to resolve than others. We will tell you if it becomes clear that we cannot respond within the timescales and we will explain why.

What to do if you are not happy with our response

If you are not happy with our response to your complaint, you can contact us again. We will discuss the options available which may help in resolving any outstanding issues, and can explain how you can take your complaint further. We will do our best to resolve your concerns.

What if you are still not happy

If you still remain unhappy, you can refer your complaint to the Northern Ireland Public Services Ombudsman (NIPSO). The Ombudsman will consider your complaint to determine whether it needs investigation by him.

Further information on the services provided by the Ombudsman is available by contacting:
